In another column we reproduce an article from the China Overland Trade Report which throws out the idea that the revision of the Treaties with Japan will be followed by a demand on the part of China for a like revision in her case. That such a demand will order, the initials as well as the surnames be preferred sooner or later there can be no doubt, but it will be long before the West-The MAPS and PLANS have been mostly ern powers will be found ready to surrender their existing rights. Not that exterritoriality is in itself an advantage to those who enjoy it; on the contrary it is an evil to be got rid of as soon as possible and all parties will rejoice when China has made such an advance in the adoption of modern ideas and the administration of justice that the exterritorial rights of European powers may be safely surrendered. PLAN OF TOWN AND ENVIRONS OF SINGAPORE. But China does not advance with leaps and bounds like her more sprightly neighbour, and she has scarcely yet entered on the_path_along_which Japan has been hurrying at such a rapid rate for years past. Consequently the time is not ripe yet for seriously entering on the subject, though the Marquis Teens has sounded a note of warning in his recent paper. It is essential to the safety of foreigners in China and the Scales of Commissions and Charges adopted by protection of their interests that, until many radical changes have taken place which will require years for their accomplishment, exterritoriality should be maintained to its full extent. But exterritoriality. ttended with disadvantages, not only an apparent gain to India. But the ed this morning. fality in Japan will certainly have the advantage of relieving foreign residents in that country from the loss and injustice which the existence of various jurisdictions must always render possible.

THE Times recently stated that the Currency

Commission had made up its mind as to the nature of its report and that the preponderance of opinion was decidedly in favour of the status quo. This statement has been authoritatively contradicted. But whatever may be the opinion of the Currency Commission, it is certain that the opinion of the public is veering more and more in favour of the rehabilitation of silver. The bimetallists have had an uphill battle to fight, but to advance have carried conviction right and body will by no means settle the question, China station. unless the report be on the right side. If it be against silver the evils that gave birth to the Commission will simply be intensified. As the World remarks, "Such a verdict victim being seriously wounded. That the question has taken a firm hold on the minds of the agricultural classes may be gathered from the report of a meeting of Leicestershire farmers reproduced in our mail news. Farmers are fund of the "old ways, and will not depart from them except under the influence kill him. After this he fired the last shot, of strong conviction. When the Agricultural Societies of the United Kingdom actively take up bimetallism the solution is not far off, for the fact plainly shows in which direction the force of public opinion tends. As to the effect of the demonetization of silver on the manufacturing interests, an article from an Indian contemporary which we reproduce to-day brings it into view very prominently. The Indian trade in cotton goods exported to Hongkong, China, and Japan, has been increasing at a marvellous rate, while that from England in the case of yarns shows a decline and in other branches not a tithe of the increase that has taken place in India. MR. PARNELL AND THE PHŒNIX-PARK MURDERS. The Times of the 18th April publishes in facsimile from the following letter :-

I am not surprised at your friend's anger but he and you should know that to denounce the murders was the only course open to us. To do that promptly was plainly [" the only cour" -er sed] our best policy. though I regret the accident of Lord F. Cavendish's death I cannot refuse to admit that. Hurke got no more than his deserts. You are at liberty to show him this, and others whom you can trust also, but let not my address be known. He can write to House of Commons.

Yours very truly, CHAS. S. PARNELL. In producing this letter the Times says: bat the duty on imports is to be raised. We particularly direct attention to the erasure in the manuscript as undesigned evidence of authenticity, and should any questions be raised as to the body of the letter being in another handwriting, we shall be prepared to adduce proof that this peculiarity is quite consistent with its genuine character.

The body of the letter occupies the whole of the first page of an ordinary sheet of stout white note-paper, leaving no room in the same page for the signature, which is placed on the fourth page near the top right-hand corner. It was an obvious precaution to sign upon the back instead of upon the second page, so that the half-sheet might if nocessary be torn off, and the letter disclaimed.

It is right and necessary to explain that the "Doar Sir" is believed to be Egan and that the letter was addressed to him in order to pacify the wrath of his subordinate instruments in the Phonix Park murders—then (on May 15, nine days after the tracedy) still at large and undetected. The anxiety of the writer to keep his address unknown will be noted, and is curious in connexion with a belief prevailing at the time that Mr. Parnell was so impressed by the dauger. he had incurred by denouncing the assassinations as to have applied for the protection of the police on the plea that his life was in peril.

Mr. Parnell in this letter describes Lord F. Cavendish's death as an "accident," but he " cannot refuse to admit that Burke got no more than his deserts." That is his language to the "Inner Circle," but before Parliament, yielding to what he considered "the only course," or as it stands amended in the text "our best policy," he spoke on Monday, May 8, two days after the murders,

We earnestly hope that the attitude and action of the whole Irish people will show the world, that assassination such as has startled us almost to the abandonment of hope for our country's future is deeply and religiously abhorrent to their every feeling and instinct. We appeal to you to show by every manner of expression that almost universal feeling of horror which this assassination has excited. No people feels so intense a detestation of its atrocity, or so deep a sympathy for those whose hearts spects and reviving hopes it may entail consequences more ruinous than have fallen to the lot of nuhappy Ireland during the present generation. CHARLES S. PARNELL. JOHN DILLON. (Signed) (MICHAEL DAVITT. Here again the poculiar language employed will be noted. It is "the evil destiny which has apparently pursued us for centuries" which "has struck another blow at our hopes," &c. Only a fortnight ago, on the first reading of the Crimes Bill, Mr. Parnell took occasion to refer to this manifesto in the House of Commons in the following romarkable terms :--I do not believe you would over have broken up that [the Invincible] conspiracy if it had not been for the denunciation of Mr. Michael Davitt, the member for East Mayo, and myself, issued after the crime i the Phoenix Park. It was the denunciation that shook that conspiracy and enabled the officers of the law in Iroland, by means of their secret inquiries and other agonoies, to get under it and finally to break it up.

An interval of more than half a year elapsed between the Phonix Park murders and the discovery of the perpetrators. In that interval while "the stain on the name of hospitable Ireland," in spite of "the appeal" made in the manifesto, still adhered to it, Ireland's uncrowned king actually addressed to his trusted subordinate, the Treasurer of the Land League, Patrick Egan, the following extraordinary letter which tells its own significant tale.
